1. The Combined GHQ of Chinese Communist and North Korean forces moved from Songchon (126-13, 39-15) to Sinup (126-47, 39-55) on 1 June.
2. North Korean and Chinese Communist troop locations on 2 June were as follows:
 - a. The North Korean VI and VII Corps moved from the western front to the west central front upon the orders of Combined GHQ.
 - b. The North Korean I Corps was still in the vicinity of Kaesong.
 - c. An unidentified Chinese Communist division and the IX and XI North Korean Divisions were in the vicinity of Ichon (126-53, 38-30).
 - d. Three unidentified North Korean divisions and one unidentified Chinese Communist division were moving toward the Ch'unch'on (127-44, 37-53) - Kap'yong (127-31, 37-50) areas.
 - e. An unidentified North Korean regiment was in the vicinity of Yongam-san (127-05, 38-42).
3. The Communist main line of resistance extends from Haeju to Koksan (126-40, 38-47) to Wonsan. The Chinese Communist 4, 3 and 1 Field Armies will line up on a main line of resistance while all North Korean and three Chinese Communist divisions engage UN troops south of the line. A North Korean staff colonel stated that Chinese Communist and North Korean troops were digging foxholes and trenches along the Wonsan - Anbyon - Koksan line.
4. From 18 to 21 May, five Chinese Communist officers from Peiping and three Soviet officers from Khabarovsk visited P'yongyang and Songchon. They held a top secret military briefing with the North Korean GHQ at Songchon on 19-20 May.
5. On 1 June, KIM Il-sŏng ordered CH'OE Yŏng-kŏn to halt the UN counteroffensive south of the 38th Parallel at any cost. North Korean high-ranking officers boasted they would retake Seoul by 15 June.
